

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Celebrated By Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. Parker, November 21.

WEDDED 25 YEARS.

Many Friends Present And Numerous Valuable Presents Received.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parker entertained charmingly at their hospitable country residence three miles east of the city Saturday evening, Nov. 21st, it being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

There were about twenty-five family and individual invitations issued to very close relatives and friends, and a large, merry crowd it was, when all assembled.

The hours were from seven to eleven o'clock. The residence was beautifully illuminated and tastefully decorated. Lovely potted plants and beautiful cut flowers, in rich profusion everywhere, and in every room, lent their added charm and fragrance to the festive occasion.

In the reception hall just beneath the glowing light, was suspended a large wedding bell. Passing on beneath the grille to the rear hall, at the left just back of the portieres, was a large, brilliantly lighted table, covered with spotless drawn linen eminently suited as an appropriate background to the glittering, shining silver thereon, so beautifully displayed. The spacious dining room was a veritable dream of beauty with its potted plants, trailing sprigueri, and graceful ferns. The mantel was banked high with lovely flowers, and suspended from above to meet these, trailing sprigueri. The window draperies of white lace were beautifully adorned with Boston fern leaves arranged to simulate intricate lace designs.

The cherry sideboard had its share of graceful floral decorations. Above the center of the table was suspended an immense chandelier adorned with silver white festoons hanging between the several brilliant lights, and these with the other draperies and windings made it indeed a thing of beauty. Diagonally across the room stretched one long heavily burdened table. In the center of the table was a large lace centerpiece upon which stood a tall cut glass vase filled with delicately tinted, large pink chrysanthemums, and next to this, towards either end, upon dainty pieces of handwork stood two large fruit bowls, heaped with luscious tropical fruits; and yet further towards the ends, large beautifully garnished salad bowls, containing various salads. Dotted here and there, rich and rare cakes of luscious beauty. Viands, pickles, relishes, sauces, etc., ice, cakes, etc., in such abundance and such a variety of tempting edibles, sufficient to satisfy even the most fastidious, were so beautifully served to the guests. An epicurean feast indeed! And one that would have done honor to a king's table. The dining room presented one harmonious whole with the unexcelled service.

The "bride" was charmingly gowned in a shimmering silver-gray silk, and looked as happy as the eve of her first wedding. The "groom" was attired in the conventional black, and seemed as joyous as on the evening he led her to Hymen's altar and claimed her as his own; happy in the delusion he had won the only prize, for which he was ready to offer every thing he possessed.

Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, of Elkton, sister of the "bride," and Mrs. T. A. King, niece of the "bride," stood in the receiving line, and performed their duties with becoming dignity and grace.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker's guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong; S. P. Elgin; W. W. Bradley; A. R. Parker; E. C. Major; Rufus McClelland; J. G. White; Harry G. Edwards; J. G. Childress; Dan Fourquean; W. D. Ennis.

When the hour of departure arrived, all bade the "Squire" and his estimable wife goodnight, wishing them many happy returns of their wedding anniversary.

A GUEST.

General Order Withdrawing All Troops Except at Two or Three Places.

LOVE AND WAR.

No Less Than Four Romances Have Already Ended in Weddings.

Maj. E. B. Bassett, who is in charge of the troops in the western division, is putting into execution the orders of Adj. Gen. Johnston for the withdrawal of the larger part of the soldiers.

The detachment of the Pineville company, stationed at Hickman and Cadiz, broke camp yesterday and will come to Hopkinsville. They will deposit their equipment here and then leave for their homes. The various detachments at Princeton, Dawson, Gracey, Cobb, Star Lime Works and elsewhere will also be relieved of duty at once, and on next Monday there will be no camps of soldiers in Western Kentucky, except at Murray, and Edwille, where the officials still regard conditions as critical.

The Golden Pond detachment was ordered home Wednesday, but the order was countermanded at Cadiz and they were ordered back to Golden Pond.

The soldiers here will probably be the last withdrawn, but it is a matter of but a few days until all will be called in.

The first soldiers were ordered out Dec. 7, 1907, and from 50 to 300 have been on duty ever since. With the exception of the murders at Hickman, where the Walker family of negroes was exterminated, the last Night Rider crimes of any magnitude in this region were the raids last summer at Gracey, Otter Pond and Cerulean, where the Illinois Central depots were burned because the railroad company had permitted troops to camp on its right of way.

The soldiers have been taken from all three of the regiments from time to time. They have undergone repeated hardships without complaining, and at night have been almost continuously in the saddle, patrolling a large part of the night-rider districts. The hostility of the people in some sections at first made their performance of duty exceedingly arduous and unpleasant, but the unflinching courtesy and good conduct of the soldiers have caused a change of sentiment almost everywhere, and they will carry with them to homes general good will.

Nearly everywhere the young soldiers have found themselves welcome visitors in the homes of the people and no less than four marriages have occurred between soldiers and young ladies in the Night Rider districts.

Last spring Sargt. John Givens, of Middleboro, was married to Miss Campbell, of Golden Pond.

In September Amos Winstead, of Madisonville, was married to Miss Sarah Nabb, of Cerulean Springs.

The same month Floyd T. Brooks, of Henderson, and Miss Corie Hicks, of Golden Pond, were married.

On Oct. 9 J. J. Sweeney, of Owensboro, and Miss Ruth Smith, of Princeton, were wedded. How many other marriages will result from the acquaintances formed during the campaign of a year, remains to be seen.

It is worthy of note that not a single shot has ever been fired at a soldier during all this time, though they have made many arrests and performed their duties with utter disregard of possible danger. In some places urgent appeals by wire and mail were sent to the Governor, begging him to keep the troops on duty, representing that they were the only guarantee of liberty, lives and property. It is said that some of the appeals were sent by persons who formerly had protested against the employment of soldiers.

The Madisonville troops on duty at Gracey, under Lieut. Utley, have made friends of everybody and many expressions of general regret over their departure are heard.

BITTER FEELINGS.

Democrats At Murray Want Troops to Stay-Jury Hangs.

Murray, November 29.—The jury trying the case of Jesse Wells on a charge of tampering with the grand jury in the investigation of an alleged fraud charged against the law and order element in the recent primary is unable to agree. Jesse Wells is a cousin of County Judge Wells. The anti-law and order element here is excited over the recommendation of the county committee by the law and order Democrats. Gov. Wilson is being urged to leave troops here and will so. Judge Wells is expected to be Denny Smith's opponent in the commonwealth's attorney race. The feeling between the factions is bitter.

Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day was very generally observed in the city. Practically all of the business houses closed a part of the day and many of them did not reopen in the afternoon. The union Thanksgiving services were conducted at the Christian church and the sermon was preached by Rev. Geo. H. Means. Special services were held at Grace Episcopal church by Rector Geo. C. Abbott. Union services were also held by the colored people.

Second Bond Call in Two Years Stopping $945 Interest.

ONLY $40,000 MORE LEFT

City Finances Now In a Most Satisfactory Condition.

Railroad bonds 21 to 42,500 each, were yesterday paid off by Mayor Meacham and the Finance Committee of the City Council. The total amount of the warrant was $11,619.57, of which $550 was for the premium and $69.67 interest from Oct. 1. This makes $21,000 of bonds retired within less than two years, leaving only $40,000 unpaid.

KELLY-GLADAS.

Hopkinsville Boy Marries Louisville Lady.

Mr. Fairleigh Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kelly, and Miss Lois May Gladas, of Louisville, were united in marriage in the latter city Thursday. The Rev. Mr. Hunt performed the ceremony. Immediately after the marriage Mr. Kelly and his bride left for this city and will spend a few days with the groom's parents on Eighth avenue, West.

The groom is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly and is a very promising young business man. He is in charge of the L. & N. railroad block system east of Louisville, with headquarters at La Grange, Ky.

His bride is a young lady of many accomplishments and is quite pretty and very popular with a large circle of friends.

MRS. C. A. McREYNOLDS

Dies After Illness of Several Weeks of Fever.

The wife of Mr. Charles A. McReynolds, of near Julian, died Thursday, after an illness of several weeks of typhoid fever. She is survived by her husband and five children. The deceased was a member of the Christian church. The interment took place in the Concord church cemetery yesterday.

SUNKEN REEFS.

Sweeping the Ocean Floor Instead of Sounding.

The mishap of the cruiser Yankee brings forth the comment that it is the more remarkable as occurring on the coast "perfectly charted." Presuming that the Yankee got off her course in a dense fog, it may be said that, while our coast is as well charted as that of any nation, "perfect" is not the characterization yet to be employed. The methods of sweeping the ocean floor to locate reefs and shoals are now undergoing a revolution which, when fully accomplished, will reveal to the mariner many danger points which have heretofore escaped record. The old way of finding out reefs and rocks not evident to the eye was by sounding. Now the coast survey proceeds by "sweeping"—that is, by sinking to the depth a pipe bar, which is trailed along by two boats, one at each end of the cable passing through it. Any obstruction encountered is immediately perceptible and is at once noted, located and observed. Coastal waters are carefully "platted" and each plat is thoroughly gone over. The superiority of "sweeping" over "sounding" is made evident by the fact that in a comparatively limited area of the Maine coast, covering rather more than forty linear miles, fifteen reefs have been discovered heretofore uncharted. It often happens in sounding that the lead line avoids some narrow spindle of rock whose point is just below the surface of the water and which goes uncharted. When the cruiser Brooklyn was gashed by one of these unsuspected plungers on our coast a few years ago it was found to be isolated and surrounded with deep water up to within a few feet of its sides. Sweeping will minimize the probability of repetitions of such accidents.—Boston Transcript.

Umbrella as a Weapon.

In one of the women's fencing schools of Paris instruction in the art of attack and defense with foils has been discontinued and umbrellas instituted, says Popular Mechanics.

The first lesson the pupils learn in this up to date means of defense from attack on the streets is to handle the watchfulness of the aggressor by skillful blows. The most simple and at the same time most effective consists in applying a firm stroke of the umbrella upon his forehead. Surprised by this stroke and perhaps blinded by the rim of the hat, he has not the time nor the presence of mind to strike the umbrella. The blows which follow such a blow are not only effective, but dangerous. The first is known as the border combat blow. Seizing her umbrella near the handle with one hand and near the point with the other and advancing a step well forward, the pupil will direct against the center of the aggressor's face the point of the ground squeegee and probably badly hurt. The same blow aimed at the pit of the stomach will probably send the recipient to the hospital and perhaps cripple him for life.

Municipal Theaters.

The first municipal, uncommercial theater in America—an endowed institution—is in successful operation in Red Wing, Minn. Red Wing is a town of only 10,000 persons, forty miles down the Mississippi river from St. Paul, and it is several years ago a citizen left $50,000 to found a municipal theater. A citizens' committee under the terms of the bequest manages the playhouse, and so well has it done its work that for the last three years a dividend on the capital invested has been paid to the town. Professor Nichols and Burton in a lecture on the drama, using the Red Wing experiment as a criterion, predicts that "in ten years probably and in twenty-five years certainly over" the United States will have its municipal theater.

Milk Bricks.

Milk bricks are sold in Belgium and Denmark. These bricks are milk frozen solid, and when intended for use as such as received in the household the lactical fluid for the tea or coffee has to be chipped off according to the quantity desired in the drink. This brick milk has grown to be a necessity in the warmer countries of Europe. The Belgium government has given a yearly subsidy to increase the trade. In Copenhagen a firm engaged in this business makes a weekly delivery of 300,000 pounds. A great deal of this goes to distant countries.

The Comet Now and Then.

Times have changed since 420 years ago, when Halley's comet, for whose reappearance astronomers are now looking, was in the heavens. Then the Christian world prayed to be delivered from "the devil, the Turk and the comet." Now it says the devil is not so black as he has been painted, the Turk is a negligible quantity, and the comet would be rather welcome than otherwise.—Boston Transcript.

Balloons and Bullets.

Experiments conducted abroad have demonstrated that balloons traveling at a height of from 600 to 2,000 yards could be hit only once out of six shots while they were absolutely safe at a height of 3,000 yards. Even when struck the damage to the gas bag was so small that the balloon was able to continue its journey for hours before the escaping gas made a landing necessary.

Concerning their appearance in the Park City, the News says: "Presenting 'A Cowboy Captain' the Dillingham Stock Company opened a week's engagement in Bowling Green Opera House last night. "The house was packed and from the manner in which the play was received by the audience it will prove to be a success. The management announced that a basket of money will be given away on Saturday evening to the person holding the 'lucky number.'"

HUMOR IN A WILL.

Son-in-Law Urged to Buy Rope and Hang Himself.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.—The feeling entertained by the late George D. Wolff, of Smerdale, toward Chas. W. Wenzel, his son-in-law, is shown in the following paragraph in his will, which was admitted to probate today.

"Fifty cents be paid to my son-in-law, Charles W. Wenzel, a native of Huntington, Pa., to enable him to buy a good stout rope with which to hang himself."

The deceased left an estate valued at $10,500.

Remarkable Change in Negro's Skin From Ointment.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 24.—Frankfort has a remarkable scientific phenomenon which is attracting much attention from the physicians of this section of the state. Ben Sayers, a negro, has turned white as a result of coming in contact of poison ivy. The scientific explanation of the change is that the pigment of the body has been destroyed by the poison, or by the medicine which was used to counteract it.

Sayers is a well-known negro shoemaker of Frankfort. He never was black, but was dark skinned and unmistakably a negro. Several weeks ago he was attacked by poison ivy and there was a breaking out all over his body, except on his shoulders. He treated the eruption with some sort of medicine and recovered from the effects of the poison. Then he was much frightened to notice white spots appearing on his body. He did not know what it meant, and thought that he was going to die, although he was suffering no pain and was perfectly well. The skin did not peel off, but the color of it slowly began to change, the white spots spreading gradually wherever the medicine had been.

At the end of a few weeks Sayers had turned white all over except on the shoulders, where the medicine had not been put. Now Sayers is as white as any man in Frankfort and would pass for a white man any place.

Christmas Fiction.

Preaching the moral of mutual forbearance, Rev. and Thomas' story "The King's Privilege," in the December Everybody's, is a delightful innovation in the field of magazine fiction. Its humor is subtle, but still fantastic, and the story, unusual in itself, is particularly adapted to the Christmas season, while the illustrations by Charles B. Falls carry out the spirit of the tale to perfection.

There is in this number a delightfully written story, "The Tale-Bearer," by Olivia Howard Dunbar, and one of O. Henry's inimitable combinations of pathos and humor, "The Third Ingredient." Lewis E. McBrayne has a charming tale of romantic love in "The Enchanted House," and in "Nolan's Revolt" Alvah Milton Kerr has written the story of a real man who thinks the life-struggle is going against him, and of a real little boy whose adventures bring this man back to his senses—and his home. It has a tremendous heart-tug.

Then there are "Little Stories of Real Life"—"Getting Christmas

TORTOISE SHELL.

The Way the Plates Are Removed From the Animal.

The comb of tortoise shell has a very pale and translucent yellow, the only really valuable kind of shell. "Many people think this pale, unmottled shell the cheaper kind," the dealer said. "Do you know why? Because the imitations are all made like this."

"That is one vulgar error about shell. Another is that the tortoise is killed to get its shell casing. That is as absurd an error as it would be to say a sheep was killed to get its wool."

"What is done is this: The fishermen, having caught a tortoise, tie him and then cover his back with dry grass and leaves. They set fire to this stuff. It burns slowly, and the heat causes the thirteen plates of the shell to loosen at the joints. With a knife the plates are pried off, and afterward the tortoise is set free. The base or roof of his shell is intact and will grow again. If tortoises were killed to get their shell they would long since have become extinct."

"No, no. Every tortoise is, as it were, a farm—a shell farm. Fishermen catch him regularly and with heat and a knife gently remove his shell."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

COLORS IN THE OCEAN.

Various Causes For the Different Tints of the Water.

Sky and cloud colors are often reflected in the sea, but just as the air has its sunset glory so water has its changing tints quite apart from mere reflection.

Oliver and brown lines in the waves off the coast come from the muddy sediment washed from the shore, as blues arise chiefly from reflected sky. But there are many other colors in the ocean. On almost every long voyage at sea spots of reddish brown color are noticed at one time or another. When a few drops of the discolored water are examined under a microscope myriads of minute cylinder-shaped algae are seen, some separate, some joined together in scores. It is this organism—sometimes called "red seaweed"—which has given the name to the Red Sea, although it also abounds in other waters. Sometimes the water far from land will be seen to be of a chocolate hue for an extent of several miles, and this is caused by millions upon millions of minute one-celled animals which imb the water along, each on his erratic individual course, by means of the finest of hair-like threads of cilia.—Pearson's.

The Traces of the Beasts.

On every side in the Malay wilds the traces of the beasts—whether here live as scheduled, as safe from molestation, as did their ancestors in pre-Adamite days—are visible on tree trunk, on beaten game path and on the yielding clay at the drinking places by the hurrying stream. Here a belt of mud nine feet from the ground shows that an elephant has rubbed his itching back against the rough bark of a tree, and, see, coarse hairs are still sticking in the hardened clay. There a long, sharp scratch repeated at regular intervals marks the passing of a rhinoceros. Here again, is the pad mark of a tiger barely an hour old, and the pitted tracks of deer of all sizes and varieties surround the deeply punched holes which are the footprints of an elephant.—Cornhill Magazine.

Settled the Sign.

When William M. Evans was secretary of state a new elevator man had been employed in the department who did not know Mr. Evans by sight. In his car was a conspicuous sign to the effect that by order of the secretary of state smoking was prohibited. One day Mr. Evans boarded the car in company with a famous senator, the latter smoking a cigar. The new man promptly touched the smoker on the elbow and said, pointing at the notice, "Can't you read that sign?" Mr. Evans promptly tore down the offending notice and, turning to the elevator man, said: "What sign? I don't see any." The attendant, suspecting something, wisely held his peace, but he followed the pair out and asked the guard at the door who the chap with the large head was. The guard told him.

England's Prettiest Villages.

After a very careful survey we venture to write down the names of the six English villages that we consider the prettiest in the land so far as our own opinion and wide experience are concerned. The choice is made impartially and with full knowledge and recognition of the claims of each to its high place. Here are the six: Bonchurch, Isle of Wight; Clonville, Devonshire; Wickhampton, Dorset; Sonning, Oxfordshire; Sibley, Surrey; and Chatham, Yorkshire.—London Strand Magazine.

Accomplished.
"She's got a future."
"Can she act?"

"No, but she can work her eyes better than any lady in the business, and as for wearing swell clothes—gee, she couldn't do better if she was twins!"—Life.

Very Careful.

Indulgent Uncle—Jack, are you careful about your personal expenses these days? Jack—Yes, sir. I manage with some effort, to make them balance my income to the exact cent. —Chicago Tribune.

The world doesn't really grow worse just the time you need medicine.—Lives.

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous In Hopkinsville.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in times of danger. Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quick. Cure all distressing, dangerous kidney ills.

Plenty of evidence to prove this. F. M. Hall, Cadiz, Ky., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and was pleased with the result derived. For six years my kidneys did not do their work properly. I had severe pains in the small of my back and whenever I stooped or lifted, sharp twinges would cause me great misery. At night my back ached considerably and mornings when first arising, would be very lame. I became tired easily and became very dull and languid. Dizzy spells also caused me much annoyance and at times blurred my eyesight. The passages of the kidney secretions were too frequent and at times I was forced to rise during the night on this account. Whenever I caught cold, it settled on my kidneys and caused me to suffer more intensely. I recently procured Doan's Kidney Pills and although I have used but the contents of one box, I have received great relief. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy that is up to representations."

Plenty more proof like this from Hopkinsville people. Call at L. A. Johnson & Co.'s drug store and ask what their customers report. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doans—and take no other.

The Same Thing.

"I'm sorry we haven't much of a dinner," said Spotts to Bloomer, whom he had urged to stay for that meal. "You ought to have dropped in last evening. We had a running dinner then."

"Why, papa," chirped Sammy Spotts, "that's just what you told Mr. Taddels at dinner yesterday!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Date of Buddha.

On the authority of the available inscriptions and of the tradition as recorded in the Ceylonese chronicles the date of the advent of Buddha is found by the latest writer on the subject to be 487 B. C. and as tradition assigns eighty years as the period of his life he must be considered to have been born in the year 567 B. C.—Indian World.

The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Generally fair Saturday. Not much change in temperature.

The Cadiz Record intimates that Judge Wells, of Calloway, is not popular in Trigg county.

All confederate organizations have been given a general order to observe the nineteenth anniversary of the death of Jefferson Davis on December 6.

Salt Lake City waded around in 10 inches of snow Thanksgiving Day. This is a big country we live in and a man can find any kind of weather he wants.

President Castro, of Venezuela, is to pay a visit to Europe to have a dangerous surgical operation performed by Dr. Israel, of Berlin, for an internal abscess near his kidneys. During his absence, Vice President Vicente Gomez will act as President. Castro has never before been out of Venezuela.

The petition to President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, asking for a new depot in this city, now contains more than 500 names and the list of signers is increasing every day. The movement has reached the proportions of a popular clamor.

Before adjourning, the grand jury at Murray returned an indictment charging the Louisville Herald with criminal libel. The bill charges the Herald with malicious and untrue utterances against Judge Thomas P. Cook in an editorial of August 23, in commenting on the night rider cases in his court. As Judge Cook will not be competent to sit in the case, Gov. Willson will have to appoint a special judge to preside.

It has developed that the three Stineback negroes who were lynched by a mob at Tiptonville, Tenn., Tuesday evening, were not hanged to a tree, as first reported, but were executed on a scaffold built in the church where they shot the officers last Saturday night.

The justice of the peace and jurors who conducted the mock trial while preparations for the hanging were going on, are likely to find themselves indicted for murder.

"Judge" Booe, the bogus claim forger in the Auditor's office, seems to have been the worst thief turned out in Kentucky for many a day. Even those who tried to shield him at first are now convinced that he is a crook of the worst type, who deliberately robbed the state for seven years. He should spend the rest of his days behind the prison bars and some way should be found to make him disgorge the $20,000 to $50,000 he has stolen.

Mr. Foard's Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Walter A. Foard were held at the Christian church Thursday afternoon and a large crowd attended the obsequies of the popular young farmer. The interment followed in Riverside cemetery.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedial. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, it is swollen and the inflamed surface is impervious to the sound waves. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that can be cured by our Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

The Kentuckian has contracted with Mr. W. T. Thornton for the issue of a mammoth Christmas and Tobacco edition of the Kentuckian before the holidays; which will be one of the largest and handsomest papers ever issued in the city. Special attention will be paid to the compilation of tobacco news of interest to all growers.

Three will be special articles from Association officials and others, and statistics, reports and matters of interest to all growers and dealers in tobacco, presented in an unbiased and disinterested manner.

A large extra edition will be printed and the papers will be circulated all over this section of the state.

Leases Cerulean.

Cerulean Spring Hotel, Trigg county's noted summer resort, has been leased by Capt. R. S. Pool, the owner, to B. Frank Smith, the liveryman at that place, for next year.

Sale Called Off

Mr. Hugh Hammock's sale advertised for Dec. 2, near Casky, has been called off and will not occur.

A Leading Question.

Superintendent McLaren of San Francisco's system of public parks was inspecting the work of restoring Union square to its former beauty, now that the little St. Francis has been removed.

"You're havin' this un out. It's a bum little bush," remarked a gardener with a brogue.

"Which one?" inquired McLaren. "You don't mean this beautiful little Scotch heather? All it needs is more water and it will grow as tall as you are."

"You're not very tall yourself, Mr. McLaren."

"Not extraordinarily so."

"I say, Mr. McLaren," reflected the gardener thoughtfully, "did you ever try water yourself?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Safety For Jewelry Stores.

In view of the increased number of jewelry robberies the Jewelers' Security alliance is urging upon the trade the use of a new and effective thief catching device. The contrivance consists of a lever hidden behind the counter and operated by the foot. By pushing this lever the door of the store is locked through the operation of a bolt at the bottom. The apparatus connects also with a large gong placed outside over the door, which is used to attract the attention of passers by to the entrapped thief. A Philadelphia jeweler, says the Jewelers' Circular, used a similar appliance recently with successful results.

Criticizes the Aeroplanes.

It is declared by the Voisin brothers of Paris that the Wright aeroplane can never have any value for practical purposes. They remark that the Wright aeroplane is the monocyde of aviation. Any one can work a trieycle with in half an hour. One can learn to ride a bicycle in a few hours, but to ride a monocyde takes a long time and the native gifts of the acrobat. So the Wright aeroplane will never be anything but a "bird for amateurs and sportsmen." The Voisin brothers believe in their "triplanes" on account of their stability.

A Coffin of Matchboxes.

For the last ten years William Bidolph Cross of Crook street, Chester, England, who died recently, was engaged in the construction of his own coffin, made of empty matchboxes. It is of the ordinary shape, and much patience and skill have been bestowed on it. There is, of course, an inner shell of wood, on to which the matchboxes are glued, and as there are some 500 matchboxes on the lid alone the total on the coffin must run into several thousands.—London Tit-Bits.

All His Life Without a Holiday.

George Hayward, aged ninety-one, who has just died at Neches Market, lived nearly all his life in the same house. He never had a day's holiday and never saw the sea. Hayward was formerly in business as a butcher, and he was in the habit of wearing an apron at church on Sundays, passing

HOW BOOE WORKED.

Almost Cleaned the Platter On Trigg County Claims.

Cadiz, Ky., Nov. 27.—As the civil suit that has recently been bought at Frankfort by Auditor James against Judge Charles E. Booe was upon claims allowed by the Trigg county circuit court at its September term, 1907, it has caused considerable comment and investigation of the records in Circuit Clerk A. C. Burnett's office at this place. The facts as revealed by these investigations are about as follows: Warrant No. 1297, payable to Will Allen, which is shown by Booe's records for $122.95, was only for $2; warrant No. 1298, payable to A. C. Burnett for $15.84, is correct; warrant No. 1299, payable to Ben Tilford & Co., for $1,000, is bogus in its entirety, and the warrant of Walker Reid for $3.39, was only for $2. Thus it appears from the records of the Trigg circuit court that out of the total amount of $1,277.79, which it seems from the suit filed that Judge Booe collected from the state on this one report, only $19.84 of it ever reached Trigg county, which was the correct amount as authorized by the Trigg Circuit Court.

In a letter written by Circuit Clerk A. C. Burnett to State Inspector M. H. Thesher, in which the above facts are given, he closes his letter as follows: The Ben Tilford claim is bogus in its entirety, and if the same appears on my report of claims for that term of court it's a forgery, as I never certified any such claim and none was ever allowed by the Trigg circuit court.

FOUR ECLIPSES

And Halley's Comet Coming In 1909.

There will be four eclipses in the year 1909, two of the sun and two of the moon.

The first will be a total of the moon June 3, the moon rising more or less eclipsed. The second will be the Central of the sun, June 17, visible throughout the United States except in the extreme southwestern portion.

The third will be a total of the moon on the evening of Nov. 25 and morning of the 27th, visible. The fourth will be a partial of the sun December 12, invisible. April 11 will be Easter Sunday, and May 30 Whit Sunday.

Halley's comet, by some supposed to be the Star of Bethlehem, is due in 1909-10. It will probably be visible to the naked eye in October, 1909. Its period is about 75 years and it has been observed at these intervals since the 15th century. Records show its probable return many centuries earlier. The comet's last visit was in 1835 when its tail was about twenty degrees long.

AGED BRIDLE COUPLE.

Combined Age of Bride and Groom Exceed 156 Years.

Leitchfield, Ky., Nov. 26.—One of the most remarkable marriages that has taken place in this county in years is that of "Uncle" John Hatfield, aged 86, to Mrs. Maggie Grayson, who is about 70 years old.

The Slim Woman is Winning.

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers. This would have been news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmole Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so follows her superfluous flesh quietly. These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are also the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmole Company, Detroit, Mich.

A Radical Departure.

The popular illustrated weeklies and monthlies are produced at enormous cost. Competition for the work of the leading authors and illustrators has established a scale of expense that is almost prohibitive. Yet in addition to its many attractive features THE CHICAGO SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD furnishes its readers with a Sunday Magazine which contains favorably with the independent periodicals in every way and has some merits peculiar to itself. The most famous writers and illustrators contribute to it. Fine paper and presswork and handy size make it a pleasure to read this entertaining publication which marks a radical departure in Sunday journalism.

AFTER CUMBERLAND

Must Toe Mark or Get Out of Town.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 26.—Several months ago the Cumberland Telephone Company's franchise here expired, and it has not been renewed because the company insists upon raising the rates while the city insists upon holding them where they now are. The telephone company agreed to prepare a test suit by Nov. 1 to have the court of appeals decide which contender is right, but failed to do so.

City Attorney Slack has advised the city council that it should order the Cumberland Telephone Company to stop doing business in Owensboro and remove all poles from the streets of the city. He also urges prosecution of the company in the city court for any charge for telephone rental prescribed in the old franchise. The raise over which a fight has come up is 50 cents on each phone.

Somerset, Ky., Nov. 27.—Judge Charles McConnaghy, former cashier of the Citizen's Bank of Monticello, who was arrested several days ago on a warrant sworn out by Bank Examiner Johnson, charging him with having converted the bank's funds to his own private use, was taken from this city to Newport and lodged in jail in default of a bond of $20,000.

Bank Examiner Johnson is still working on the books and has discovered several other fraudulent entries, he says.

Incipient Fire.

An alarm was turned in from the residence of J. H. Cate, on Second avenue east, on Thursday morning. The fire department found on arrival at the scene that the fire could be controlled without trouble. It was in a clothes closet and was put out with a few buckets of water.

The newly elected officers served refreshments to the entire membership at a restaurant after the lodge adjourned.

POULTRY BUSINESS

Has Brought Many Thousands of Dollars Here.

One firm in this city in the two weeks before Thanksgiving handled 6,000 turkeys and large numbers of ducks, geese and chickens. The turkeys were collected from all over this part of Kentucky and Tennessee, coming in here frequently in car load lots. The prices paid for them ranged from 10 to 11 cents per pound gross. A force of from thirty to forty negroes were kept busy stripping the feathers from the turkeys, this being the extent of the dressing. The other fowls were shipped alive.

Still another firm handled almost as many, but they shipped all of theirs in the live state and in car load lots. Most of the shipments went to Chicago and Louisville. It is estimated that $15,000 worth of fowls have been shipped out of the county since the first of November.

The Fairy Godmother.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Bubbles didn't care whether it was appropriate or not; she wanted it, and she was saving up her money to get it. Every morning when she went to the store she found the girls talking of their summer hats.

"What kind are you going to have?" they would ask her, and Bubbles would laugh—the gay bubbling laugh that had given her her nickname—and would say, "Wait and see, girls; wait and see."

"Oh, piffle!" one of them said on a certain June morning. "I don't believe you're going to get a hat."

"Wait and see; wait and see," said Bubbles provokingly.

And then after the store was closed she went around the corner and looked at the hat with the white feather.

The price was in plain sight—$10. Bubbles earned $4 a week. Out of that she paid her aunt $2.50 for board. Fifty cents went for car fare, and the rest she had for herself. Since last summer she had managed to save $9.50, and the other $10 would add the complete amount necessary to buy the hat with the white feather.

She decided to tell Alice Forbes about it.

Alice was at the ribbon counter, while Bubbles sold notions. Their acquaintance rose from the fact that they walked home in the same direction.

"I'll have to wear it with all my old blue suit," Bubbles said as she went along. "But I don't care. I've made myself a white net waist, and it's awfully becoming."

"Ten dollars is a lot for a hat," Alice said quietly.

But Bubbles laughed, with her head flung up and her bright eyes shining. "Oh, what's the use of living?" she said. "If a girl can't have something pretty now and then?"

Alice nodded. Her blue eyes were watery. "That's what I think," she said. "Now, there's a remnant of ribbon at my counter. It's white, with bunches of pink roses on it. It would make a lovely girle, and I could buy a white dress for 15 cents a yard and a little wreath of pink roses in the millinery department, and then I could be bridesmaid for Little Drake."

"Does she want you to be?" Bubbles asked, with interest.

"Yes," Alice said. "Jimmie Bryan is to be best man."

"Oh!" Bubbles was silent for a moment. Then she asked, "Don't you think you can afford the dress?"

"No," Alice said quietly. "I can't. And I told Millie last night to ask you, Bubbles. I knew you wouldn't mind being asked second, because I'm her eldest friend. I told the piece of dowered ribbon away this morning, so that if you wanted it you could have it. You could make a white net skirt to your new waist. It would be awfully pretty with the pink roses."

But Bubbles was looking at her curiously.

"Don't you mind," she asked—"I mean not being bridesmaid?"

"Yes, I do," Alice said, and Bubbles saw that her eyes were full of tears.

"But I have to give all of my money to mother now that father is sick and can't work."

"Well, it's a hard old world," Bubbles remarked as she reached the corner where they separated. "If I decide to take the ribbon, Alice, I'll let you know in the morning."

At the next corner Bubbles met Jimmie Bryan.

"Jimmie," she said, with her gray eyes challenging him—"Jimmie, are you going to be best man at Millie's wedding?"

"Sure," answered Jimmie—"cutaway, white flower in my coat and all the rest of the regalia."

"And me to walk up the aisle with you?" said Bubbles.

Jimmie looked at her in surprise.

"I thought Alice was going—was going to do it," he said.

"Alice can't get the clothes," Bubbles informed him, "and if I wasn't a selfish pig I'd get them for her, but I want a white feather in my summer hat."

Jimmie hesitated. "Look here, Bubbles," he said a little awkwardly, "ain't there some way you could make Alice think you were getting her dress and let me pay for it? I'd like to do it."

Bubbles caught her breath quickly.

"Why, Jimmie," she said.

Jimmie dashed. "She has a awful hard time," he said.

"Yes, she does," Bubbles agreed absently. She was a little white, but she still smiled at Jimmie.

"So you don't want me to be bridesmaid with you?" she teased, still with a funny catch in her breath.

"Aw, Bubbles," he stammered, "you know I think you're about the nicest thing ever—"

"But you'd rather have Alice walk up the aisle with you," was her quiet reminder.

"I wouldn't," he declared stoutly.

"But I'm sorry for Alice."

"Of course," Bubbles agreed, and then she went on to plan. "I could get her the things and tell her the money had come to me unexpectedly."

"I am afraid that wouldn't do," was Jimmie's worried response. "She'd feel as if she had lost it back. You get the things and send them to her and don't have any mark on the box, and she'll never know where they talked about," Bubbles said, "for she would know right away. Do you care how much you spend, Jimmie?"

"No," he told her with the recklessness of the skilled laborer who earns his $3 a day; "no, I don't."

"Then I'll get a robe dress of pink mull with a wreath of silver roses. She'll look like a dream, Jimmie."

"I hope she will," Jimmie said, and Bubbles sighed.

"Goodby, Jimmie," she said as she came to the tenement where she lived on the third floor.

He looked at her anxiously. "You're not cut up about not being bridesmaid, are you?" he asked.

She shook her head. "No," she answered bravely.

"Well, you're pretty nice, Bubbles," he said heartily, and then he went on his way.

When Bubbles reached home she took out her hoarded store of money. With what she would have $10, and she could buy the hat with the white feather.

She fingered the money for a moment, and then she dropped her head on her arm with a sob, for Bubbles had wanted that hat to wear to church on Sunday morning when she sang in her choir with Jimmie Bryan. It had been for Jimmie's admiration that she had craved the pretty hat. And, after all, it was Alice that Jimmie cared for.

Two days later Alice came to her counter breathlessly.

"Oh, Bubbles," she said, "such a wonderful thing has happened!"

"What?" asked Bubbles innocently.

And then Alice told her of the wonderful gown and the dainty accessories that had come the night before in a big box.

"I can't imagine who sent them," she said. "It must have been a fairy godmother," said Bubbles demurely.

"And now I can be Millie's bridesmaid," caroled Alice when she had exhausted all her conjectures as to the giver. "You won't mind, will you, Bubbles?"

"No," said Bubbles steadily.

And as she sold needles and pins and hooks and eyes and whalebones and a hundred and one other things that day she told herself that she did not care. Why should she want to walk beside Jimmie Bryan when he preferred to have Alice?

She passed the window with the hat with the white feather that night without a glance, and on Sunday she wore a plain little black sailor with a cheap red rose, and she looked prettier than ever in it.

"Alice thinks you're a fairy godmother," she told Jimmie after service.

"Say, did she like it?" he demanded.

"Of course she did," said Bubbles. "Who wouldn't?"

But Jimmie did not answer immediately. He stood looking down at her. "Say, little girl," he said presently, "you look mighty nice in that dress."

"It cost just $1.38," Bubbles informed him shyly. "I picked it down from $2. I don't care what it cost," Jimmie stated. "You look mighty nice."

Bubbles couldn't resist saying, "But not half as nice as Alice will in that pink robe."

"Bubbles, I believe you're jealous," flashed Jimmie unexpectedly.

Bubbles' cheeks flamed. "Why, Jimmie Bryan," she faltered.

"Look here," Jimmie demanded, "did you think I was in love with Alice?"

Under his keen scrutiny Bubbles was forced to admit, "I couldn't very well help it, could I?"

"I was afraid you would," Jimmie said, "that day when I planned to get her the things. And I don't promiss, oh, look here, Bubbles, you come out to the park with me, and I'll tell you about it."

And all the way to the park Bubbles' heart sang, and she seemed to walk on air, and she was glad that she hadn't bought the hat with the white feather. She was glad she hadn't been extravagant, for Jimmie seemed to like her just as well in the black sailor with the red rose.

In the park the beds were full of jonquils and tulips and hyacinths and crocuses, and under the flowering almond tree Jimmie and Bubbles sat down to talk.

"You see," Jimmie explained, "there's Bob Travers, and he's in the navy, and he's away on a three years' cruise, and he made me promise that I'd look after Alice—they've been in love with each other since they were kids—and when Alice's father got sick I tried to help, but they wouldn't let me, and it seemed as if getting her the dress would be what Bob would want me to do, and now he's going to get home in time for the wedding, and I told Millie she'd have to have him for best man."

"You," cried Bubbles, aglow with happiness.

"And then I told her how much I thought of you, and she wants us to be in the wedding party, and—oh, well, look here, Bubbles. And in the shadow of the flowering almond he held out his arms."

And Bubbles, having vent a little wisp of joy on his broad shoulder, sat up and wiped her eyes. "Ain't I glad I didn't spend all my money for that feather, Jimmie?" she said. "I'll get the white net skirt and wear the rose-but ribbon."

"And a diamond ring," interrupted Jimmie.

"A diamond ring? What for?" demanded Bubbles.

"Because we're engaged," said Jimmie rapturously.

HOW THE DOCTOR WON.

By JEANNETTE S. BENTON.

The office boy heard the doctor in the annex and went out. Her face was buried in a basin of water, and the formaldehyde bottle stood open.

"How's the smallest?" he asked.

"Bad," she replied, emerging rosy from the towel. "Is any one waiting?"

"Very well. Tell him I will be there in a minute."

As the boy closed the door she walked to the mirror and regarded herself attentively, spraying violet water over her hands and hair.

"I wish I had some powder," she murmured. "I am afraid I look blowy."

To the tall young man in the reception room she looked discouragingly cool and unperturbed as he arose at her entrance.

"It is a little matter, doctor," he explained. "I have just been transferred to the Y mine, and they have smallpox down there, so I suppose it is necessary to be vaccinated."

"It certainly is if you haven't been lately. Things are in bad shape at the Y. I have put in the whole afternoon there. There's a good deal of smallpox and more dissatisfaction. I suppose the dissatisfaction is what sent you there."

"I suppose so. What's at the bottom of the trouble anyway?"

"Sleekening hovels and the company store. If you can get the company to do anything before those people murder you as its nearest representative you will be doing good work. However, come into the office, and I will vaccinate you."

He followed her in.

"This is the first time I ever came here as a subject," he remarked.

He bared his arm and looked dubiously at its white surface.

How could she be a doctor? Still, he had sometimes wished he could be sick a week or two. It would be such a good chance to see her every day. What was she going to do with that razor looking little knife? It had been so long since he was vaccinated he had forgotten all about it. Did she jab the stuff in at the end of that? If she was going to jab he wished she would stop that scratching.

He watched the scratching knife, fascinated. Suddenly it began to describe erratic circles in his vision.

Dr. Ritchie felt his arm relaxing under her grasp. With a movement as quiet as it was quick she eased his stalwart body to the door, then loosened his collar and dashed a little water in his eyes.

He opened his eyes slowly.

"Oh, I say," he gasped, "what's the matter?"

The doctor stood a little way off regarding him with profound gravity.

"I was vaccinating you, and you fainted," she explained. "You will be all right in a moment."

He got rather uncertainly to his feet and leaned against a convenient case of drawers.

"Good Lord!" he groaned. "What do you think of me with professional gravity? I was vaccinating you, and I don't know what it was. I was watching that little knife; then I was here on the floor. Please finish the job," he pleaded irritably. "I'll try to stand up under it."

As she adjusted the small bandage he thought savagely:

"If I should lift you off your feet, my sweet doctor, and kiss that diabolical dimple you might at least respect my muscle. How can a fellow make love to a woman doctor anyway?"

Aloud he said, "Thank you, doctor," rather abruptly, hurried into his coat, settled with the office boy and got away with all speed.

The doctor stroiled to the window and watched him go striding off, his big shoulders squared.

"Poor old fellow," she said softly.

Then she flushed and smiled in a way that little befitted a member of the medical profession.

"He is bashful and stupid, too," she pouted.

Donna Aldrich squared her shoulders against his troubles often that winter. His recognized powers as a pacifier seemed to have suddenly failed.

One day he swung into the cart as the doctor was trotting home.

"See here," he said. "I must talk with you. I don't know what to do with those people. Heaven knows they have reason enough to be sore, and I am helpless. Of course they can't realize that, but the company pays no attention to my representations. I am the nearest thing the poor devils have to hate, and they hate me well. Tomorrow I have got to discharge McGuire and Kearney."

The doctor interposed: "That means a strike, to begin with. Then Kate McGuire and Dilsey Kearney—why, they would as soon have a riot as enough to eat."

"But what can I do? The men have come on the shift twice within a week drunk and quarrelsome. Overlook it and they will all get drunk and—"

"Raise hades," gently suggested the doctor. Then her face grew malicious. "Don't you think you had better follow your predecessor's example and throw it up?" she suggested.

He looked at her with decided sternness.

"I suppose that was about the opin-

And Mr. Aldrich had checked the horse enough to depart.

It was cold, with a driving mist, when the doctor drove up to her gate several evenings later.

"Poor Rose!" she said to the panting horse. "Tired, aren't you?"

A small, tattered boy came down the road, running wearily, as though nearly spent.

"Oh, Miss Doctor," he shrilled, "wait!"

His face shone pale through the dirt. As he came up she recognized the pit loam boy.

"I've sent me to tell you to do something quick. Kate and Dilsey is out with a lot of wimmin, an' they are runnin' wild. Mr. Aldrich went down with the new shift. I've told him he better watch things on top, but he thought pa needed help. Now they are goin' to git hold of the shaft house an' when Mr. Aldrich comes up with the new men either drop the cage or rock 'em."

The doctor's face had grown white as the boy talked.

"The shift will come up at 6?" she asked.

The boy nodded.

"Come into the house. You must be dried and fed. I will telephone the police, but Bess and I will get there half an hour ahead of them. Heaven knows what we will do, but we will do something or die!" she half-whispered.

"Now, go, Bess," she cried as she sprang into the buggy.

As she approached the little town she could hear a swelling din of discordant voices. She dashed through an alley and came out in the street in front of the shaft house. The women were sweating around the corner just below her, fifteen or twenty of them. Their tawny arms and distorted faces held her a second, fascinated. Then her brown eyes brightened mischievously, and she wheeled the horse and cart directly in front of the howling crowd.

"Kate McGuire!" she called, pointing an accusing whip at her. Their momentary carried them nearly to the cart. Then, as they could not conveniently climb it, she told the "wimmin" that there was a person to respect anyway, they stopped.

"What do you mean," she demanded sternly, "yelling around in this cold rain? What do you think it will do for your neuralgia? You will be crazy with it. Your cheek is all swelled up now, and your eye looks as though you had broken a blood vessel. I know a woman once—her voice grew deeply impressive—"whose eye burst, and she didn't expose herself the way you are doing either. And you, too, Dilsey, just nicely over the smallpox—do you know what you will have? You will have a relapse!"

She faintly hurried the word at her, and Dilsey hurried it with a moan of terror.

"Holy mother, doctor!" she wailed. "Do it be faint?"

Kate had shut her mouth and was whining softly, cuddling her face in her damp shawl. She turned reproachfully to the women behind her.

"The doctor's right. This do be a sorry night for poor wimmin creatures to be out in, an' ye ought to be ashamed, ye head's crazy already wid the pain."

She came close to the buggy.

"Doctor, dear, do be givin' me something!" she entreated.

"How many of you have vaccinations that you'd be taking cold in?"

And you, Jerusha—I thought you told me you couldn't speak a loud word?"

"No more I can," croaked Jerusha hoarsely.

"Go home, every one of you!" she waved imperiously. "You ought to be ashamed, running around like a lot of maniacs. I'll come around presently and give you something for that neuralgia, Kate, and you a dose, too, Dilsey."

Five minutes later there wasn't a woman in sight save the doctor.

She drove the trembling horse into one of the sheds.

"Poor old girl!" she said, loosening up the harness. "I nearly killed you, didn't I?"

There was a sound of hurrying feet, and Mr. Aldrich came in breathlessly.

"Are you safe?" he cried.

She gave him one quick glance, her white chin and red lips set with becoming gravity.

"I think I am," she replied, with a mild note of inquiry. "Do you feel dangerous?"

He strode up to her and looked down into the provoking face.

"A man who faints who he is vaccinated is a fit subject to be saved from a mob of women, isn't he?" he questioned. "Don't think I don't realize how serious it was. I know you probably saved me from a very unpleasant death, but I wish you hadn't."

He searched her face an instant, then suddenly drew her to him and kissed almost roughly the delicate dimple that was haunting at him.

"I have been tempted a hundred times to kiss you."

"And you were too stupid to—er—fall!"

Draughts as an Education.

There is no game extant which so admirably combines educational and recreative features or which is in every way so well adapted for a popular and profitable amusement among refined and appreciative classes as draughts.

Its influences are of an elevating character. It not only teaches, but practically enforces, the necessity of patience and perseverance, courage and courtesy, self reliance and self control. The game is also a most interesting and evidently worthy of paternal encouragement, as a knowledge of its incomparable benefits will destroy the taste for demoralizing games of chance—Exchange.

Farmer Buys Valuable Tennessee Farm.

The farm of Allen C. Johnson, near Murfreesboro, Tenn., was sold at auction Wednesday to Mr. Hugh Hammock, of Casky, for the sum of $16,000. This makes the average per acre about $78. The farm is known as the Maple Park farm and is a very valuable piece of property. It is situated in a very desirable locality and is one of the best farms in that section.

Mr. Hammock recently disposed of his farm near Casky, and will shortly take up his residence in Tennessee.

OFFICE OF

Black Patch Warehouse Company.

Clarksville, Tenn., Nov. 24, 1908.

Dear Sir:

The undersigned begs leave to give notice of the organization of The Black Patch Warehouse Company. The capital stock has been fixed at $50,000, a large part of which has been taken by farmers. This company is a product of the Kendrick-Runyan Warehouse Company, which it succeeds. From the date of its organization, some four years ago, with a capital stock of $10,000, it did a profitable business, each year showing a gratifying increase over the preceding year. In order that the growth of the business might continue unhampered, and especially with a view of advancing farmers more money on their tobacco, the formation of this new and stronger company was found both practicable and advisable. Its stockholders are composed of some of the most influential and conservative men of the Black Patch district, a fact that insures increased prosperity for the business, supplied as it will be with ample capital to prosecute a warehouse business in such manner as will promote the interest of its patrons in every legitimate manner possible. The same conservative policy that characterized the management of the Kendrick-Runyan Warehouse Company will be adhered to. As general manager of the new company, I shall endeavor always to pursue such course as will promote the mutual interests of the patrons and stockholders.

The Black Patch Warehouse Company will be ready for business on or about Dec. 1, 1908, and will occupy the same warehouse which its predecessor has operated for a number of years, and which is conceded to be as desirable in every particular as any in Clarksville. We desire to state that we shall set aside a room in the warehouse for the special accommodation of our friends from the country, which will be comfortably heated in the winter, supplied with ice water in the summer and furnished with other conveniences. This room will beat the disposal of all farmers and their families who may visit the city, regardless of whether they are patrons of the house or not.

In conclusion I beg to state that we shall be actively alert for the business of the planter, pledging all alike our best efforts in the service of our patrons.

Very truly yours,
C. D. RUNYON, Manager.
Black Patch Warehouse Company.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

Performed On Mrs. Jeff Keeney of Trigg County.

Mr. Jeff Keeney, of near Linton, accompanied by Dr. Bell, of Gracely, carried his wife to Evansville last week, where an operation was performed upon her. Two large tumors, weighing six pounds, were taken from her, but she stood the operation splendidly, and expects to be able to return home next week. Mr. Keeney returned home Monday morning.—Record.

Trigg Was Asleep.

New Democratic committeemen in Trigg county were elected in only 4 precincts and no reorganization of the committee has been attempted. The Record says the old committeemen will hold on in precincts where no elections were held and it is probable a special election will be held soon to reorganize the committee.
